Over 350 residents provide feedback to Englewood Schools

on: April 27, 2016 In: News, Schools & Sports

Over the past month, Englewood School District has been making a concerted effort to gather as much community feedback as possible about the future of the district — most notably what should be done with aging elementary school buildings.

The district has assembled a Facilities Long-Range Planning Committee, made up of parents, community members, and district staff members, to look at all possibilities for repairing or replacing the now 60-year plus old buildings, as well as coming up with the best configuration for the schools and students in the district. Apart from studying demographic reports and learning the inner workings of each building, the group also seeks to get feedback from the community before making a recommendation.

In order to learn about the community's desires, the district offered the opportunity for in-person feedback through several town hall meetings in the months of March and April as well as an opportunity for online feedback through a survey.

Over 350 people responded to the district's online survey, adding to the feedback that was collected in person at the town hall meetings. The district has posted the results of the survey and feedback from town hall meetings on a webpage at englewoodschoools.net/facilityplanning.

The Facilities Long-Term Planning Committee meets weekly. The group will use all of the gathered information to make a recommendation to the Board of Education at a public meeting on May 17.
