Informative Memoranda

The following are memoranda in response to City Council's requests, as well as other informational items.

1. Articles concerning the closure of South Clarkson for the Craig Hospital expansion, public art at Kent Place and a Light Rail Corridor Meeting on February 27, 2013. .
2. E-mail from Council Member Olson concerning small business in Colorado.
3. Letter from the Arapahoe Santa Claus Shop expressing appreciation for the donation.
4. Letter from TLC Meals on Wheels expressing appreciation for the donation.
5. E-mail concerning the Englewood Business Summit.
6. Updated 2013 Englewood Community Profile.
7. Calendar of Events.
8. Tentative Study Session Topics.

Once construction is complete, the north end of South Clarkson Street, between Girard and Hampden avenues, will remain closed while the south end will continue to provide access to Swedish Medical Center's parking garage. What had been the north end of the block will soon be home to a new park and garden area. Photos by Peter Jones

The road not taken

Block of South Clarkson closed for hospital expansion

BY PETER JONES

Work is underway on a project that will eventually result in a new greenbelt between Craig Hospital and Swedish Medical Center. Last October at Craig's request, the Englewood City Council voted to close half a block of South Clarkson Street to accommodate Craig's plans for growth.

The rehabilitation hospital is embarking on a $90 million expansion that will result in 80,000 additional square feet of hospital space and easier pedestrian access to either side of the medical campus.

For years, employees, patients and their families either crossed an enclosed second-floor pedestrian bridge or went outside to walk across the 3400 block of Clarkson. The bridge will soon be mostly reserved for wheelchair-bound patients.

Workers prepare the north end of the 3400 block of South Clarkson Street for further construction. The overall project will eventually add two floors to Craig's east building and one to the west building, totaling about 80,000 new square feet. The new space will include several private rooms and new therapy centers for Craig's spinal cord and brain-injured patients.

Englewood public art sculpture embellishes Kent Place corner

By Tom Barry

After years of wrangling, the Kent Place multi-million dollar development is coming into place.

Fresh Fare by King Soopers opened Dec. 12 and the most of the surrounding retail stores and the Patxi Pizza are open for business. Chase Bank has just opened a sparkling new facility to serve the community. And a massive below grade parking structure is being built to accommodate 300 luxury apartments for the Kent Place Residences.

Instead of a cornerstone, this Englewood development has erected a unique sculpture on the northwest corner of Hampden and University.

"The art piece at Kent Place is the result of an agreement between the city and Continuum Partners," said Michael Flaherty, Englewood's deputy city manager. "Continuum agreed, as part of the Planned Urban Development, to provide, at their sole expense, an entryway art piece for Englewood at the Kent Place Project."

Eric Chekal an executive with Regency spearheaded the effort.

The soft pale yellow colored carved stone, entitled the Keystone — Cornerstone, embellishes Englewood's east entrance into the city at the heavily traveled intersection.

Noted Denver sculptor Michael Clapper designed and carved the Kansas limestone block at the Iron-ton Studio's complex in "RiNo" — short for the River North, an art district in an industrial area just north of downtown Denver.

Clapper, 60, presented one-foot high models of his concept to an Englewood art selection committee competing with seven other artists for the honor of adorning the city's gateway.

"The abstracted piece is my interpretation of a cornerstone and a keystone together," said the artist whose most notable public art piece is a massive sculpture at the entrance to the University of Texas in El Paso. A 28-foot tall sculpture features the head of a pickaxe without the handle. "Most people here have not seen that piece in El Paso."

A keystone is the top part of an arch, the last thing that holds the very top piece of a masonry form, Clapper said.

"Initially, I just thought of the new community and a small corner at the intersection, as the spot for the public art and I naturally thought of a cornerstone," said Clapper. "The final piece of architectural form was the top — the last piece."

Clapper began with a raw stone weighing 11,000 pounds, costing $2,000 and shipped from a quarry in Kansas. Small natural occurring holes provide a texture on the 2x4x11 foot long solid sedimentary stone.

The stone was carved during a one-month period at Clapper's studio utilizing various sized grinders with diamond tooling. The stone was carved in two pieces and is joined together by a large steel pin and structural epoxy.

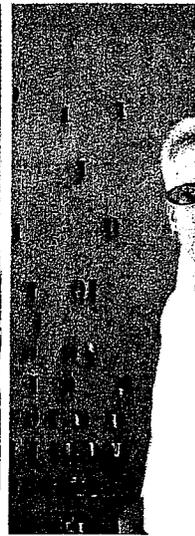

"If you look at the overall body of work, my abstract work is very minimal in form and is heavily influenced by Japanese and Scandinavian culture," Clapper said.

City Council members Linda Olson and Jill Wilson participated on the review committee. Mark Falcone of Continuum and Cynthia Madden Leitner, the director of the Museum of Outdoor Arts, provided their expertise. John Grant, a public arts consultant, advised the group.

Englewood residents Donna Schnitzer, Martha Kirkpatrick and Andrea "Andy" Mallen participated in the review process.

The soft pale yellow colored carved stone sculpture embellishes Englewood's east entrance into the city at the heavily traveled intersection. Michael Clapper created the public art piece.

Local artist Michael Clapper, who created the sculpture at Kent Place in Englewood, poses with another creation from his RiNo art district studio.

Hi Linda, it sounds like a good idea. Kelly is a very capable Director. I hear that last night went well. I'll ask Sue to put the article in next week's packet. Gary Hi Gary, I think that in light of our Economic Summit next week that Kelly Brough's column from DMCC is very informative. Would it be appropriate to pass on to Council?

Dear Linda:

Small business is big business in Colorado.

Every year, we are proving that statement to be true as we climb the national rankings. In 2013, Denver ascended to No. 3 of the 102 markets compared for small business vitality (by the way, we were No. 6 in 2012, No. 8 in 2011 and not even in the top 10 in 2010).

We know that, when small business thrives, Colorado's economy wins. More than 97 percent of all employers in Colorado are small businesses, and 76 percent of all Colorado businesses are sole proprietors. Colorado's culture of innovation encourages individuals to create and develop their own companies. At last week's State of Small Business event, we highlighted a few of those small business success stories.

The theme was to show how three very different companies overcame adversity to not only keep business humming during the recent recession, but thrive. Lesson number one: It's not easy. Lesson number two: Tenacity and creativity can be your strongest asset in times of great uncertainty and stress.

Lesson number three was delivered by Diane Dimeff, executive director of eSpace. She emphasized the importance of not overlooking creative young workers who are an energetic addition to the workforce. She emphasized that you may actually have to go out and find them to attract them.

Of all the innovative products coming out of the bioscience cluster, Sharklet Technologies is a poster child for the industry. Mark Spiecker, CEO of Sharklet, explained how his company is revolutionizing everyday objects, as well as medical devices, by developing the world's first texture designed to inhibit bacterial colonization; and, dig this, it replicates shark skin. It was discovered by accident – like so many great ideas – as a scientist tried to determine why barnacles don't grow on sharks as they do on other slow-moving marine life.

Maren Stewart, president and CEO of LiveWell Colorado, described the economic imperative of tackling our nation's (and yes—Colorado's) problem of obesity. Stewart gave us even more of a reason to pass on the bacon: While Colorado is the leanest state, its adult obesity rate has surpassed 20 percent for the first time in our history. Our childhood obesity rate is really disturbing as the second-fastest growing.

Lesson number four: All the speakers emphasized that, in order to be successful in their mission, access to an educated workforce is critical. We know that, in four years, 67 percent of jobs will require some college; yet, today, only 46 percent of Coloradans have a two-year degree or more, and only 72 percent of students are graduating from high school. Colorado's economy, and all of our businesses (small and large), depend upon the education pipeline and access to an educated, innovative workforce.

Lesson number five: If our companies are going to grow and succeed, they need to access capital and investors. Helping our small businesses overcome this challenge is a priority for our Denver Metro Small Business Development Center (SBDC). Last year, the SBDC secured $12.2 million in capital for small businesses, and that's just the tip of the iceberg.

Still basking in the glory of earning the title as the No. 1 SBDC in the country (out of 1,100) in 2012, our SBDC continues to provide critical support to small business

Englewood, Co. 80110

Dear City of Englewood:

All of us at the Santa Claus Shop want to thank you for your support of $250.00. Your continued support helped us at the Santa Shop and volunteers, in 2012, provide toys and books to many children. These children are referred from agencies and schools in the Englewood, Littleton and Sheridan communities.

In addition to the above, we were able to provide food for many, many families through the Emergency Assistance Program in Arapahoe County that is administered by the Colorado State University Extension. The volunteers worked tirelessly collecting new toys and sorting and restoring the gently used toys and books. This labor of love exists for the sole purpose of offering the fullest compliment of gifts for parents to select for their children.

Please refer to our website, arapahoesantashop.org, for additional information. Again, thank you for helping all of us provide smiles and excitement for the children in our community who received a gift on Christmas morning.

Warm wishes

Charlotte Bornmueller
Secretary

P.S. Your entire donation is directly applied to the service provided and minimum administrative expenses. Because you received no goods or services in exchange for your contribution, the full amount of your gift is considered to be tax-deductible.

Dear Friends,

Please allow me to take a few moments of your time to update you on an important occurrence in the life of TLC Meals on Wheels. I am very pleased to announce the appointment of Diane McClymonds as our new executive director. She replaces Phil Miller who recently retired and had served our organization with great distinction for the past four years.

Diane is no stranger to TLC Meals on Wheels and her experience is allowing us to make a seamless transition to a new executive director. Diane has been a volunteer driver as well as a member of our board of directors, even serving for a year as board president. Most recently, for the past two years she has served as our director of operations, seeing to it that our nearly 300 clients receive a hot, nutritious meal, five days a week.

Our dedicated staff, volunteers and board of directors welcome Diane to her new position and are energized and eager to continue moving TLC Meals on Wheels along a path of excellence that is so important for the well being of our clients. Serving seniors and other homebound individuals with a friendly word and a good meal will always be our mission.

I am also pleased to note that while our search for funding is never easy and never goes away, meticulous stewardship of our finances means that we continue to weather our stormy economy without serious setbacks. Words can hardly express our gratitude for the generosity of our many donors who make this possible.

We thank you for your continued interest in TLC Meals on Wheels and know that you join us in congratulating Diane and welcoming her to her new position.

Sincerely,

David Burcham

Attachments: City of Englewood Primary Employers List for Invite to 022613 Event.xlsx

Good afternoon Darren,

Hope you are well and having a great week!

Quick update about our promotional efforts for the Englewood Business Summit to date, and thank you for bringing the invitations to the EDG last Friday.

On Monday afternoon 10 Chamber staff members (including myself) canvassed the “primary” employers of the City and provided personal invitations to 86 of the 90 companies listed on the attached spreadsheet. The four remaining are in bold, and they will be provided invitations by the end of the week. In addition, a few of the staff members dropped invitations to several businesses within the vicinity (not listed on the spreadsheet) and I now have a stack of additional cards/businesses that I will provide to you as soon as I have it available and in a spreadsheet. This was a fun exercise (and we learned some interesting data that I would like to share with you as well), and several were excited to learn about the event. Hopefully many are RSVPing to you via the invitation.

Second, we have provided two separate mass emails/invitations to the 42 individual Englewood clients of the Chamber and to most of those listed here on the spreadsheet (those of which we have email addresses) – one during the week of January 21 and the other during the week of February 4th. I plan to send one final reminder on the 19th, one week out from the event.

Finally, we have posed the event on our South Metro Denver Business Meet Up site at <http://www.meetup.com/bestchamber/events/96587302/>, and advertised to several of our groups, including the EDG. To date we have 60 RSVP’s from the Meet Up promotion, and several have direct or indirect ties to Englewood (indirect would be somebody such as Saunders Construction). Would you like those names now, or closer to the event? There will be some additions and subtractions in the next couple weeks, so I would suggest waiting until next week before we provide a final list.

Thanks Darren – this is a great project and we are honored to partner with you on the effort. Please let me know if you have any related questions.

Best regards,

Jeff Holwell
